Home Univ.: Hanyang University
Dept.: College of English Education Committee

Description: This course aims to teach engineering students academic English writing skills. For this, students will read and analyze the text to learn the framework for academic writing in the engineering field. Then the students will be engaged in a project to experience the authentic cycle of research such as 'establishing research questions – conducting research – analyzing data – writing discussion and conclusion.' Through the process of the project, students will learn how to plan a research, to take notes of the researched materials while conducting research, and to write the discussion and conclusion sections of the academic paper in the engineering field.

Objective:

- 1) To acknowledge and express oneself's emotion and thoughts and to understand others emotion and thoughts
